

FREE PARENT GUIDE

How to Teach One Name of Allah ➤ in One Week ➤

A simple 5-day rhythm for helping your child understand, remember, and live with
Allah's Beautiful Names

For Muslim homeschool families with children ages 4–12

My Muslim Homeschool

WELCOME

A Gentle Note for the Parent

You do not need to be a scholar, curriculum expert, or perfect teacher to begin teaching your child the Names of Allah. You need a simple rhythm, a little consistency, and a way to connect each Name to your child's heart and daily life.

This guide is a simple method, not a full curriculum. Go slowly, keep it gentle, and focus on understanding instead of rushing.

What this guide will help you do

- ✓ Teach one Name of Allah over one week without planning from scratch
- ✓ Use a simple daily rhythm for ages 4–7 and 8–12
- ✓ Connect each Name to real life, du'ā, and family discussion
- ✓ Add movement and hands-on learning for children who learn best by doing

A helpful reminder

This guide uses a generic 'Name of Allah' so you can apply the rhythm to any Name you are teaching. When you want done-for-you lessons, use the Discovery Packs for the full child workbook and parent guide.

How This Weekly Rhythm Works

Each day has one simple focus. You do not need long lessons. Aim for about 10–20 minutes a day, adjusting for your child's age and attention.

- 1 Day 1 — Learn the meaning
What does this Name teach us about Allah?
- 2 Day 2 — Find the proof
Read one proof from Qur'an or Sunnah.
- 3 Day 3 — Connect it to real life
Help your child notice the Name in everyday life.
- 4 Day 4 — Move, make, and remember
Use hands-on learning and movement.
- 5 Day 5 — Reflect, review, and make du'ā
Bring the week together.
- 6 Bonus Day 6 — Extend the learning
Add one simple extra activity.
- 7 Bonus Day 7 — Family connection
Review the Name together as a family.

➤ Parent reminder ➤

Younger children may answer mostly out loud. Older children may enjoy deeper discussion, writing, or copywork. Keep the goal simple: know the Name, understand the meaning, and live with it.

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Supplies and Setup

A few simple tools can make your week feel calm and easy. Keep this guide practical and open-and-go.

Supplies list

- ☐ Pencil
- ☐ Crayons or colored pencils
- ☐ Blank paper or notebook
- ☐ Sticky notes or index cards
- ☐ A small basket, jar, or envelope
- ☐ Optional: printed Discovery Pack pages
- ☐ Optional: child-safe scissors and glue
- ☐ Optional: open space for movement activities

Set up in 5 simple steps

- 1 Choose one Name of Allah to focus on this week.
- 2 Write the Name somewhere visible.
- 3 Choose a simple meaning your child can understand.
- 4 Choose one proof from Qur'an or Sunnah, or use the proof provided in your Discovery Pack.
- 5 Decide when you will do the lesson each day.

Keep it simple

This guide does not replace proper Islamic study. It gives you a gentle family rhythm for teaching and reviewing one Name at a time.

Learn the Meaning

Focus: What does this Name teach us about Allah?

Today we are learning one of Allah's Beautiful Names. This Name teaches us something true and perfect about Allah. We are not just memorizing a word. We are learning who Allah is.

For ages 4–7

- Say the Name together slowly.
- Repeat the simple meaning.
- Ask: 'What does this Name tell us about Allah?'
- Draw or color a simple symbol connected to the meaning.

For ages 8–12

- Write the Name and meaning.
- Ask: 'What would someone miss if they memorized the Name but did not learn what it means?'
- Have the child explain the meaning in their own words.
- Let them say how this Name could help their heart.

Physical activity

Name Walk: Place the Name on one side of the room and the meaning on the other side. Let your child walk, hop, or step from the Name to the meaning while saying both aloud.

Du'ā prompt

O Allah, help me know You, love You, and remember You.

Find the Proof

Focus: What does Qur'an or Sunnah teach us about this Name?

The Names of Allah are not just beautiful words. They come from revelation. When we teach a Name, we want our children to know that it is rooted in Qur'an and Sunnah.

For this guide, choose one clear proof from a trusted source or use the proof already included in your Discovery Pack.

For ages 4–7

- Read the proof aloud.
- Keep the explanation short.
- Ask: "What did we learn about Allah?"
- Repeat the meaning together.

For ages 8–12

- Read the proof together.
- Underline or copy one key phrase.
- Ask: "How does this proof help us understand the Name?"
- Let the child explain it in their own words.

Physical activity

Proof Match: Write three cards: "Name," "Meaning," and "Proof." Let the child place them in order and explain how they connect.

Discussion prompts

- Where did we learn this Name from?
- Why is it important to learn Allah's Names from Qur'an and Sunnah?
- What does this proof help us remember?

Connect It to Real Life

Focus: Where can we notice this Name in our day?

Children remember more when the lesson connects to real life. The goal is not to create a made-up story. The goal is to help them notice true, everyday examples.

For ages 4–7

- Ask: “When might you need to remember this Name?”
- Use simple real-life examples.
- Connect the Name to family life, gratitude, safety, and feelings.
- Keep the discussion warm and simple.

For ages 8–12

- Ask: “How could remembering this Name change the way someone behaves?”
- Ask: “How could this Name help someone when they feel worried, sad, thankful, or unsure?”
- Let the child explain one real-life example.
- Connect the Name to daily choices.

Physical activity

Real-Life Corners: Label four corners of the room “Home,” “School,” “Feelings,” and “Du‘ā.” Call out a situation. Your child moves to the corner that fits best and explains why.

Reflection questions

- When could I remember this Name?
- How does this Name help my heart?
- What is one situation this week where I can use this Name in du‘ā?

Move, Make, and Remember

Focus: Help the lesson stick through hands-on learning.

Some children need to move, touch, build, sort, or physically arrange ideas before the lesson fully clicks. This is especially helpful for dyslexic learners and children who struggle with sit-still worksheet learning.

For ages 4–7

- Build the Name with letter cards.
- Sort cards into “Name,” “Meaning,” and “Du’ā.”
- Make a simple reminder card.
- Use hand motions for the meaning.

For ages 8–12

- Create a mini mind map.
- Make a “When I feel ___, I can remember this Name” chart.
- Write three real-life examples.
- Create a teaching card for a younger sibling.

Physical activity

Meaning Path: Place paper cards on the floor with “Name,” “Meaning,” “Proof,” “Real-Life Example,” and “Du’ā.” The child steps through the path and explains each piece.

Du’ā prompt

Use the Name of Allah in a simple personal du’ā connected to the meaning.

Reflect, Review, and Make Du'ā

Focus: Bring the week together.

Review questions

- What Name did we learn this week?
- What does it mean?
- What proof did we read?
- What did this Name teach us about Allah?
- When can we remember this Name in real life?
- How can we use this Name in du'ā?

For ages 4–7

- Let the child answer orally.
- Keep it warm and simple.
- Ask them to choose one thing they remember best.

For ages 8–12

- Write three sentences:
 1. This Name means...
 2. This Name teaches me...
 3. I can remember this Name when...

Physical activity

Teach-Back Circle: The child stands and teaches the Name back to you using the Name, meaning, one proof, and one real-life example.

Family du'ā

End the week with a short family du'ā using the Name you studied.

Extend the Learning

Purpose: Give extra value without making the plan feel overwhelming.

Extension ideas

- ✧ Add the Name to a weekly memory wall.
- ✧ Review the Name during morning basket time.
- ✧ Ask your child to notice one moment in the day that reminds them of the Name.
- ✧ Let older children find another proof with parent support.
- ✧ Create a family "Names of Allah" notebook.
- ✧ Review previously learned Names before adding a new one.

For dyslexic and movement-based learners

- ✧ Use large cards instead of small print.
- ✧ Let the child answer orally before writing.
- ✧ Use movement paths, sorting, matching, and hands-on review.
- ✧ Keep writing short and meaningful.
- ✧ Allow the child to draw symbols, map ideas, or use color-coded cards.

Keep the rhythm gentle.
The goal is not perfection.
The goal is to help your child know Allah,
remember Him, and turn to Him.

Family Connection

Purpose: Help the lesson leave the school table and enter family life.

Family discussion prompts

- Where did we notice this Name this week?
- How did this Name help us make du'ā?
- How can we remember this Name next week?
- What is one family habit we can connect to this Name?

Simple family challenge

Choose one small family action connected to the Name.
Keep it realistic and concrete.

- Make du'ā together using the Name.
- Notice blessings and say alḥamdulillāh.
- Practice patience in one hard moment.
- Ask Allah for help before beginning schoolwork.
- Review the Name before bedtime.

Closing reminder

The goal is not to finish a worksheet.
The goal is to help your child know Allah,
remember Him, and turn to Him.

PLANNING PAGE

My One-Name-a-Week Plan

Use this page to plan one simple week of learning around one Name of Allah.

- Name of Allah we are learning: _____
- Simple meaning: _____
- Qur'an or Sunnah proof I will use: _____
- Main idea I want my child to remember: _____
- Du'ā we will practice: _____
- Physical activity we will use: _____
- Real-life connection: _____
- Supplies needed: _____

Day 1: Meaning

Day 2: Proof

Day 3: Real-life connection

Day 4: Hands-on activity

Day 5: Reflection and du'ā

Bonus Day 6

Bonus Day 7

Ready for the Done-for-You Version?

This guide gives you the weekly rhythm.
The 99 Names Discovery Packs give you the actual lessons.

Each Discovery Pack includes the child workbook and parent guide for one Name of Allah, with the teaching structure already prepared for you.

Each Discovery Pack includes:

- | | |
|---|--|
|  Simple meaning |  Reflection questions |
|  Qur'an proof |  Real-life connection |
|  Sunnah proof |  Du'ā practice |
|  Parent teaching notes |  Hands-on activity |
|  Child workbook pages |  Family challenge |

Start with the available
99 Names Discovery Packs

Collection 1 is being released one Name at a time, in shā' Allāh.